The basic findings indicate that the western portion of the claim group is underlain by Prospect Mountain Quartzite. The Quartzite is in fault contact with younger shales and limestones on the eastern portion of the claim group. The Quartzite is strongly brecciated by a major thrust zone. The fault breccia is mineralized and in places is cut by gently dipping east-west trending mineralized fissures and veins.

The work was performed under the direction of Greg Fernette whose qualifications to supervise such work include the following experience and education: more than twelve years experience in the mineral industry and seven years of undergraduate and post-graduate university education in the field of geology.
